The SAFTA Writers Coop is a 10×10' dry cabin approximately a fourth of a mile from the SAFTA farmhouse. This tiny house is furnished with a single bed, a desk, a wood-burning stove, a deck that looks over the pasture and pond, as well as a personal detached outhouse. While the cabin has neither electricity nor running water, residents will have full access to the amenities at farmhouse as well as solitude from other residents. This residency runs $150/week. Would you be interested in being considered for a Coop residency as well?

Yes

No

APPLICATION NARRATIVE (PART 4/6)

Please describe (in 500 words or fewer) the project you will be working on during the time of the residency.

FELLOWSHIP/SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION (PART 5/6)

Each farmhouse residency costs $300/week, which includes a room of one's own, as well as access to our communal kitchen, bathroom, office, and living space, plus wireless internet.

Residencies in the Writers Coop are $150/week and include your own private dry cabin as well as access to the farmhouse amenities. Because of the low cost, we are rarely able to offer scholarships for Writers Coop residents.

As part of our commitment to anti-racist work, we are now using a reparations payment model for our farmhouse residencies which consists of the following:

- 6 equitable payment weeks at $300/week
- 3 discounted weeks for BIPOC writers at $250/week
- 3 reparations weeks for Black and/or Indigenous identifying writers at $150/week

There are also limited partial scholarships (10-30%) for any writer with large-scale financial hardship. Current fellowships are listed on the website.

1. Are you applying for a fellowship? If so, which one?

☐ Yes ☐ No
2. Are you a Black and/or Indigenous identified writer applying for a reparations space?

☐ Yes ☐ No
3. Are you a BIPOC identified writer applying for a discounted residency space?

☐ Yes ☐ No
4. Are you applying for financial aid? If so, tell us briefly what this scholarship would mean for you?
5. Are you a Black and/or Indigenous identified writer applying for a support grant? If so, tell us briefly what this scholarship would mean for you?

REFERENCES (PART 6/6)

List the names, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses of two references. Please note that these references do not need to be academic but can include anyone familiar with you as a member of a community and/or familiar with your writing.
